Better Pain Prescribing. Clarity and confidence in opioid management

Pharmaceutical opioids are now responsible for nearly 150 hospitalisations every day in Australia.

The Therapeutic Goods Administration (TGA) is committed to safer opioid prescribing - recently initiating a campaign to further improve prescribing decision-making processes and foster the safer use of opioids. Endorsed by leading pain, addiction and palliative care experts across Australia from the Opioid Regulatory Advisory Group (ORAG), this important campaign seeks to drive awareness of, and educate healthcare professionals around regulatory changes and measures that will help reduce opioid-related harm. The Faculty of Pain Medicine (ANZCA) has partnered with the TGA, developing a targeted better pain management and safe opioid therapy eLearning program for primary care providers involved in managing those with chronic pain.

Available at no cost to health care professionals residing in Australia, this course will help develop greater clarity and confidence with six key eLearning modules dedicated to best-practice opioids prescribing and pain management techniques. Targeted educational content developed by specialist FPM clinicians includes essential clinical tools, doctor/patient videos and individual case studies that will:
